City council denies early construction for 'Cheaper'

■ Unless store's proponents can change city council's mind on Feb. 8, a new Southport Cheaper store may have to wait for a planned, second barge canal bridge is completed

By Steve Marschke

By a 3-1 vote Wednesday, the West Sacramento voted to uphold an appeal and deny proponents of a new "Cheaper!" discount grocery store and gas station the right to build before a new Southport bridge is completed. The argument hinged around the question of whether the 8,000 square foot store would increase -- or decrease -- traffic levels across the strained Jefferson Blvd. bridge crossing.

Voting against the store's early construction were Mayor Cindy Tuttle and council members Wes Beers and Greg Potnick. Councilman Roland Hensley voted in favor of the store, and in favor of the city planning commission's earlier positive ruling on the subject. Councilman Bill Kristoff abstained for conflict of interest reasons.

Although the city planning commission had earlier approved the store's plans, based largely on a traffic study performed by Fehr, Peers and Associates. The study, which did not involve any traffic models directly comparable to the planned Southport Cheaper! store, had concluded that many of the store's patrons would be local, and that it would actually decrease the use of the Jefferson Blvd. bridge by one percent.

"They didn't have a comparable model," said Dan Amegin, president of the Southport Homeowners Association, which protested the planning commission's approval of the project. "At the council meeting, they referred to a 6,000 square foot comparison store, but that was not included in the study. If it was in the study, then it was not identified, nor was it identifiable."

Typical convenience stores enclose about 2,000 to 3,000 square feet. At more than twice that size, opponents of the project complained that the Cheaper! store would draw from a wider area than just those neighborhoods surrounding its two-acre location at the intersection of Jefferson Blvd. and the southern end of Linden Road.

Amegin's group appealed the planning commission's decision, as did (independently) council members Beers and Potnick, leading to Wednesday's hearing.

John Roscoe, who owns the store chain, said his company would try to change the council's mind on Feb. 8, when city staff is due to bring back a prepared and final rejection of the proposal for the council's vote.

Roscoe said that he felt that the public discussion Wednesday night, ostensibly about traffic issues, was really about something else.

"I think its absolutely something else," Roscoe said Tuesday. "I think it's something local in the politics that we didn't know

Golden State students tackle their first drama

By Steve Marschke

About 35 students at Golden State Middle School are joining new vice principle Mike Melton for a March production of the musical "Oliver!," -- and what is apparently the first drama production in the school's history.

"I talked to a receptionist who has been here since 1978, when the school started," said Melton, who taught drama at a Sacramento high school for 15 years ending five years ago. "This seems to be the first."

The musical, based on Charles Dickens' "Oliver Twist," will give the drama teacher a chance to cast "a lot of kids."

"It's a good show," said Melton. "It's one the kids can relate to. And the kids are learning discipline, commitment, and learning to work together with other kids toward a goal."

The students practice daily after school. Their first performance will be on March 1 for other students, and they will follow with two evening performances for community members on March 2 and 3, at 7:30 p.m. at Yolo High School.

Tickets will be $1 for those under 18, and $2 for adults over 18. They may be purchased at the door.

Sixth grader Becky Miller will play the title role of Oliver. Anthony Farnworth is Fagan, and Mario Martinez is Artful Dodger.

Melton promises a "fun show" for those who attend the performances. Rehearsals began shortly before Christmas, and the production is starting to "gel."

"It's going to be a fun show," he promises. "They're just now starting to spark together, to realize it's a fun thing to do."

Bank robbed, suspect leads police to Fairfield

■ No weapon was used in robbery, but suspect led police on high-speed chase ending in Fairfield

By Steve Marschke

A Washington state man handed a note to a teller at US Bank on Merkley Avenue on Monday shortly before 1 p.m., and made off with an undisclosed amount of cash. But he was caught in Fairfield following a high-speed chase on the freeway which led to speeds of about 100 m.p.h., said Lt. Ron Moore of the West Sacramento Police Department.

Police believe Leighton J. Dupree, a 46-year old man with a Seattle address, was responsible for the robbery, and that no weapon was used.

The suspect left the scene heading westbound on Merkley, followed by police detectives Bombardier and Duckett, who happened to be nearby when the robbery was reported. He then got rid of a portion of the money, said Lt. Moore, in the Merkley/Westacre area.

"A lady found the money and turned it in to us," said Moore.

West Sacramento police officer Wanner also joined the chase.

The suspect than apparently turned his vehicle around and headed back past the bank to the Jefferson Blvd. freeway onramp. A chase ensued, with the suspect's car passing other vehicles and pulling off the freeway for a time each in Davis and Vacaville, and then joining the freeway again until pulling off in Fairfield.

The California Highway Patrol led the pursuit beginning east of Davis, and local police agencies also were involved.

"We stayed with him all the way," said Moore. In Fairfield, "he blew a tire and stopped, and we arrested him."

The money was apparently all recovered, said Moore, and West Sacramento police are "comparing notes" with other jurisdictions to see if their suspect might also be responsible for other robberies.

During the chase, a Yolo County sheriff's patrol car collided with a private vehicle, he added, but it was unknown at press time whether serious injuries were involved.

Apparent game of 'Russian Roulette' nearly turns fatal as handgun goes off, wounds boy

■ 15 year old local boy is recovering from wounds to jaw and throat

By Steve Marschke

A local 16-year old boy, whose identity is being withheld due to his age, has been charged with attempted murder after he allegedly shot another youth while forcing him to play a game of "Russian Roulette" with a .38 caliber revolver.

The incident occurred on Monday, Jan. 16, at a May Street house where about 14 people were present. The suspect was reportedly using a gun with one round loaded to play the deadly game of chance with unwilling participants, when the 15-year old male victim was shot.

"Nobody wanted to play with him," said Moore.

The suspect was apparently approaching people and asking them if they felt lucky, then spinning the revolver's cylinder and firing. When the victim was shot during his turn, the incident was initially reported as a drive-by or accidental shooting.

"The victim is out of the hospital now after being shot in the jaw and throat area," said Lt. Ron Moore of the West Sacramento Police Department. "He is having a hard time speaking.

In an unrelated incident, one of the witnesses in that shooting -- another minor -- was killed in Sacramento during a drive-by shooting over the weekend, said Lt. Moore. Further details were unavailable.

American Express donates $5,000 for GSMS computer lab

The Washington Unified School District has announced that it has received a grant of $5,000 from the American Express Foundation to help create a computer lab at Golden State Middle School which will serve approximately 500 students and 100 teachers. With the computer lab, the school district hopes to make computer education and the application of that knowledge part of the student's routine curriculum.

"With the computer lab, we will not only be able to integrate that skill into the student's curriculum, but we will also strive to offer evening classes in computer for parents and other adults in the community," said Diane Smith, principal of Golden State.

American Express Company is a diversified travel and financial services company founded in 1850. It is a leader in charge cards, Travelers Cheques, travel, financial planning and international banking.

Public field trip to visit Yolo Bypass on Feb. 4

From the Yolo Basin Foundation

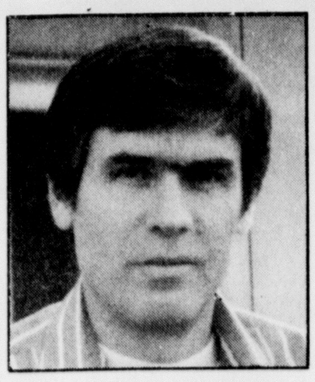

Join the Yolo Basin Foundation for a half-day visit to a privately owned wetland preserve in the Southern Yolo Bypass on Saturday, February 4. Access to this property is permitted only by special arrangement with the owner. As part of the preserve's overall improvement project, a natural setting with a slough has been recreated using tidal waters delivered through a channel. Peak populations of shorebirds and waterfowl should be using the wetlands when we visit. Raptors and songbirds are common in the riparian area of ash, cottonwood, and willow. The owner will share with us just what it takes to bring to life a wetland habitat vision.

Expect to walk about 1/4 mile. Please note that due to flooding conditions in the Yolo Bypass this trip may have to be cancelled. Call 756-7248 the day before the trip to confirm if trip is still planned. Bring your own food and water. Rain on the day of trip cancels it.

On a mission to find a furry companion for a friend

My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

About a month ago, Mary Gordon, a friend of mine who is in her seventies and lives by herself in a small apartment, asked me if I would mind doing her a favor. She doesn't have any transportation and she wanted to know if I would drive out to the Sacramento Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals to see if they had any dogs for adoption. "I've been feeling lonely for quite some time now," she explained, "and I think I would really enjoy having a dog around again to keep me company."

"What kind of dog?" I asked her.

"It would have to be pretty small," she said, "because that's the only kind they allow here. Maybe a poodle--or a little cocker spaniel--something like that."

"Do you want a boy or a girl?" I asked.

"A female would probably be best," she said. "And maybe it should be an older dog--you know--one that has already been housebroken and isn't too rambunctious."

So, for the past few Saturdays, with the above doggie description in mind, I've been dropping by the SPCA and the city pound in the hope of finding a sweet little friend for Mary. Unfortunately, as I write this, I have come across just about every type of dog imaginable--all of them badly in need of a new home, too--but none who really seemed like they would fit Mary's needs.

Anyway, I decided to try again earlier this morning, and asked my youngest son, Kyle, and his friend, Justin--who had spent the night with him--to go with me. As we motored over the bridge on our way to the pound on Front street, I suddenly got an urge to take a little detour over to tenth and Broadway--the location of one of my favorite local historical sites--the old Sacramento City Cemetery.

"Why are we going in here?" asked Kyle, his eyes as big as saucers.

"The pound doesn't open for another fifteen minutes or so," I said, "and I think you guys will find this place pretty interesting."

"Really?" said Justin, sliding over a little closer to me.

"When I was young, I used to come over here all the time," I explained, wheeling into the cemetery. "The old Sacramento Solons used to play triple-A baseball right across the street--where the Target parking lot is now. And it used to be a great spot to watch the Fourth of July fireworks from, too. Plus this particular cemetery is just full of history. All kinds of famous names are on these old tombstones--men like Crocker--Hopkins...."

"Is Elvis buried in here?" interrupted Justin, looking out at one of the larger stone mausoleums.

"No," I said, returning his smile, "They buried Elvis in Tennessee--where he lived. This cemetery is mostly for people who lived in Sacramento--a long, long time ago."

"Wow," said Kyle, pointing to a huge carved figure of a soldier sitting atop a strutting horse, "look at that! Who is buried under that horse's feet?"

"Probably some well-known man who fought in the Civil War," I said. "See the dates--he died in the late 1800's--and the soldier on top of the horse is wearing a uniform from that war."

"You know," said Justin as more and more interesting grave markers and family plots came into view, "I think this is one of the neatest places I've ever seen."

"Do you guys want me to stop the truck so we can get out and walk around for a bit?" I asked them.

"Will we step on any dead bodies?" asked Kyle with concern.

"Not if we're careful," I assured him.

"We'll watch where we walk, won't we, Kyle?" said Justin with a serious expression on his face.

As I strolled along behind Kyle and Justin as they rushed from marker to marker, calling out the names and dates they came across, I reluctantly took a moment to consider my own mortality and was reminded of the old Camus quote, "In the brief time that is given to him, he warms and illuminates without turning from his mortal road. Sown and harvested by the wind, such is man, through the centuries, proud to live but a single instant." Then, to make things worse, Justin cried out, "Hey, Daryl, look at this--a whole bunch of Fishers are buried in this one!"

Sure enough, upon closer examination, a cluster of nine very dead Fishers had been laid to rest over a hundred years ago in the City Cemetery. As I explained to Kyle that none of the names in the family plot were related to us, he suddenly asked, "Dad, were the people standing up when they put them in those walls?"

"No," I said, "everybody is laying down in there--in their caskets."

"Are they just bones now?" asked Justin.

"And what's a casket?" asked Kyle.

Before I could answer, Justin added, "Boy, you know, this place isn't scary at all."

"I know," quickly agreed Kyle with that special logic bestowed on all eight-year-olds, "I bet lots of nice people live here."

The 49ers are headed to the big Dance in Miami next Sunday against the San Diego Chargers, and so am I!! The Chargers are 19 point underdogs in Super Bowl XXIX. The game time is 3:18 p.m. (PST) from Joe Robbie Stadium, and will be televised on channel 13. An end zone ticket for the game is selling on the open market at $800 and up! If you want yard-line seats, it could cost you $2,500 apiece!

Ex-Cowboys linebacker, and now-49er Ken Norton Jr. has a chance to do something no other player in the history of the NFL has done -- win three consecutive Super Bowl championships. Linebacker Gary Plummer, who left San Diego as a free agent in the off-season to play for the 49ers, is concerned that Chargers coach Bobby Ross would use the team's underdog status to get them mentally prepared for the game.

The point spread is the highest in Super Bowl history (it may go to 21 points at game time) and the 49ers can be the only team in NFL history to win five Super Bowl titles. I think the game will be a little closer than what the bookmakers are saying, but the Niners will win!! 49ers 38 - Chargers 21.

The Sacramento Kings (22-16) are hosting the Dallas Mavericks on Tuesday, then travel to Utah on Wednesday and play the Mavericks in Dallas on Saturday. The Kings are 15-5 at the Arco Arena.

Those mysterious, disappearing, reappearing potholes

Ah, those potholes.

If you happen to travel on Jefferson Blvd. in Southport a lot, you have probably noticed those rather irksome potholes north of Linden Road in the northbound lane.

A month ago, they were there.

Then they were gone, filled smoothly so you didn't have to swerve around them any more. Then the filling disappeared, and the holes were back.

Then, a week ago, they were filled again. And soon, the holes will reappear and be filled yet again.

Maybe there are some other disappearing, reappearing potholes elsewhere in town, although the editor hasn't run across (or run over) any of them.

But city manager Joe Goeden explains that the very temporary nature of the fillings was not due to the incompetence of Caltrans. It was instead due to the cold weather.

Road workers had to use a "cold patch" over the holes, he explained, because the weather is too cold this time of year for them to successfully lay asphalt. So the fillings will last awhile, and then have to be replaced, until a more permanent solution is available after the weather warms up.

"Break a leg," kids, if that is indeed what they say in show business.

The sixth, seventh and eighth graders at Golden State are going to attempt the school's first drama production -- a musical no less -- in early March.

West Sacramento owes them a full house during the March 2, and March 3 7:30 p.m. performances at Yolo High School.

Letters to the Editor

Pat on the back

Too often we vilify the media for being over zealous or of yellow journalism, but we do not see enough written thanking the media for the good publicity they give to an event or situation.

I would like to take this opportunity to say a hearty "thank you" to the media for the outstanding support they provided to the recent November 2 "Joey Lopes Alzheimer's Aid Society Crab Feed." This support was not in the financial aspects but it was getting the word out that West Sacramento/Sacramento's greatest lightweight boxer of the 1950's, Joey Lopes, who has Alzheimer's, was still in their fighting. Joey is fighting the biggest fight of his career but with support from the great citizens of West Sacramento/Sacramento area and the outstanding media support, a donation of $2,300 was given to the Alzheimer's Aid Society of Northern California to aid in conquering this dreaded disease.

Again, thank you for your media and moral support in the biggest fight of Joey's boxing career. Joey Lopes vs. Alzheimer's.

In their defense. . .

I, too, read the Bee article of Jan. 5, and with mixed emotions. The article contained a number of discrepancies and my first reaction was to respond to these; however, after further consideration, I decided that the positive image outweighed the negative. Qnly after reading Mr. William's commentary in the News-Ledger did I feel moved to set the record straight.

The so-called do nothing immediate past administration was responsible for our school district being recognized and honored for numerous achievements statewide and nationally. Outstanding among these honors: two of our six elementary schools have been recognized nationally for Academic Excellence, WUSD ranked within the top five school districts nationally for parent and community involvement with our Make the Connection programs, received numerous awards for outstanding BiComp programs, and forged a Community Partnership with the City of West Sacramento that benefits the community and the schools.

Regarding test scores and performance value -- let me say that it is very difficult to measure academic progress when 37 percent of the school population has limited English speaking skills. It must be very frustrating to the teachers who are minimally able to communicate with a classroom of students. My compliments to those who face this problem everyday.

It is not my intent to undermine the accomplishments of the present administration, but let's give credit where credit is due.

Could Mr. Williams have been so focused on his own political agenda that he failed to see all the good things happening here? Shame on you, Hal.

Concerns misplaced

Watching the last city council meeting left me with the same aftertaste as scanning "Ladies Home Journal." Reading about wonder women who perfectly balance job, home and family makes me feel like a hopeless klutz.

I felt the same sinking sensation as I listened to members of SHA (Southport Homeowners Association) explain why a Cheaper Store in our area would not decrease traffic across the bridge. Evidently, these people are so well organized that they do all their shopping on a precise timetable. SHA says a local poll shoed residents rarely, if ever, make a special trip across the bridge to buy gas or incidentals.

It's a good thing they didn't poll my house because it would have messed up their calculations. I figure we make about 6 to 8 special trips a week across the bridge seeking gas and forgotten groceries items. I guess that makes me a disorganized smuck and explains why I always end up on the losing side of every local controversy.

One speaker suggested that anyone who runs out of mil could easily solve the problem with home delivery. True, but they will only deliver once a week. Every Wednesday, I fill the top half of the refrigerator with 13 1/2 gallon containers of milk (and I have to listen to my husband muttering under his breath about the extra $.6 a gallon for "needless luxuries" every time he pays the dairy bill). Besides, man does not live by milk alone.

The president of SHA announced (to Planning Commission) that 99 percent of people living in Southport would boycott the store! That is quite an exaggeration considering that at least 8 residents (maybe more) cared enough as individuals to testify that they wanted a Cheaper Store.

On councilman feared that the additional traffic (based on the vague presumption that people would stop shopping on the way home from work and be in a frenzy to cross the bridge) may cause an accident. Persons involved in this hypothetical accident may come to the council and blame them for allowing the store to be built. Given this convoluted logic, if I continue to make additional trips across the bridge to buy incidentals and have an accident -- can I blame the council for not building the store?

Personally, I was impressed by the owners (husband/wife) of the Cheaper chain when they spoke to the Planning Commission. They spent their 40+ wedding anniversary defending their reputation and concepts for the store. Most of SHA complaints appeared to be bogus traffic issues already researched and resolved by the city staff.

SHA voiced concerns that the Cheaper store would have adverse environmental impacts and lower property values. Talk about being penny wise and pound foolish! If you want to see plummeting property values, just wait until the paper plant starts pumping umpteen tons of chemical waste into the atmosphere every day of the week. I appreciate councilman Beers attempt to force some semblance of accountability but you can't make a silk purse out of a sow's ear.

As stated in your recent editorial, it is time to take off the rose colored glasses. For better or worse, the day the Industrial Park was approved, Southport sealed its fate. Face it folks...this is never going to be another Bel Air. Upscale neighborhoods don't cozy up to Industrial Parks. I know I'm being super negative but I'm trying to accept the reality of living next to a big, smelly, steam belching paper plant) and heaven knows what other industries will follow). Since we're all going to be living in this greasy smog bank together, the SHA should chill out and cease being so pretentious. I promise Southport won't turn into a ghetto without their benevolent social engineering.

Everyone knows SHA screamed loudly enough to prevent deserving families from moving into affordable housing planned for Southport. I hesitate to say their ballyhoo has once again caused the council to cave in but the vote did seem a bit orchestrated. I respect and admire everyone on the council but I did get the impression that the fleeting remarks evaluating new testimony were mostly a sham and the final vote was a foregone conclusion. I sincerely hope I'm wrong because even a small city council represents a democratic ideal so much greater than our own petty preferences.

For the following reasons, I hope the city council will reconsider supporting this appeal. 1) It's going to be a long time (if ever) before Southport population numbers will support a major grocery chain; 2) We need the tax revenues; 3) Cheaper Stores may now sue the city; 4) The proposed site is zoned commercial, so a future council (comprised of new members) not so sympathetic to SHA may allow a business much less compatible to the area; 5) There are plenty of stressed-out moms who would welcome a store (even with a stupid name like Cheaper); and most important, 6) Some of our elderly and infirm neighbors consider it an answer to prayer.

Thanks to dancers

At the January Pot Luck Dinner, the members of the Golden Years Club were pleasantly and graciously entertained by a group of young dancers from the Dance Factory in West Sacramento. The dancers were lively, well-schooled and demonstrated enthusiasm in every step. They included the following: Ali Avila; Kelsy House; Tabitha Lange; Christina Lukens; Trisha Tejada; Lynnette Tejada; Savannah St. Julian; Janine Sarmento; Chris McCallister; Erin Hernandez; Katie Harris; and Emily Griffith-Peters. The young people were instructed by Lora MacDonald. After reading and hearing about so many of the bad things going on with youth in today's world, it is refreshing to see and to know about the good things that are happening -- it helps to renew our faith in young America. Many thanks to the dancers, their parents and the instructor for giving of their time to present this delightful program.

The Sacramento River registered 14 feet, U. S. Gauge, at the Southern Pacific bridge yesterday. This is a raise of 8 feet 6 inches since a similar time a week ago. Last Tuesday the gauge registered 17 feet 6 inches, when the river really looked as it used to several years ago and just as dirty and muddy as it ever has been in its history. The debris dammed against the piers of both bridges across the river is extraordinary for the height of the flood. Several carcasses of cats and dogs and hogs with one or two cattle have floated by the city water intake of Sacramento.

Word received from the bedside of Percy Eugene, who is at Camp Mills and being cared for by his mother, is to the effect that a great improvement has been noted in his condition, with hopes that he may overcome the dread disease with which he is afflicted. He is 24 years of age, of good build, robust during his early years, and although he is afflicted with pulmonary tuberculosis, there is a chance that he may overcome the disease.

Without any apparent lawful business at this side of the river, Stasia Hayden, a wanderer from Sacramento, was picked up last Saturday by Constable Buckingham. When she was hailed before Judge Barry, she was sentenced to 30 days in the County Jail but was given the privilege of floating out of town as quickly as possible, which she did.

Yesterday a straw suit case with leather trimmings was found on the levee by Constable Buckingham, bearing all the evidences of having been stolen from J. Romero. Several letters addressed to him were found in the case, as were three shirts, a shaving brush and the picture of a lady and little boy. The case is in the keeping of the Constable for the rightful owner.

Last Monday Robert McClain and Tom Tierney, two good Scotchmen, were found occupying a vacant flat owned by E. A. Palm. After being cautioned to get some rightful rooming house, they were sentenced to spend thirty days with the Sheriff in Woodland.

Report of the death of Ted Glasco, which occurred at Marysville yesterday, when a derrick turned over on him during working hours, was read by many residents of Washington where he was well known. At the time the Southern Pacific bridge was constructed, Glasco was one of the first men to arrive from the East in the employ of the contractors and continued here for several years with his wife. His death will be regretted by many friends in Washington.

Mrs. A. Kinch is again attending to her duties in the Washington Grocery, after nearly two weeks of confinement to her home with a severe cold.

A baby girl was born last Saturday to the wife of A. Rossi. This is the third girl in the family but both parents are happy in the new arrival.

Jeff Armstrong of Cosumnes has been a visitor at the Leinberger home since last Tuesday. He is a prominent farmer of his locality and is in the market for harvesting and farm machinery.

A good story is being told around town about August Brietzke, Charlie McClure and W. A. Parkinson. Last Wednesday they went out on the Yolo Basin to shoot ducks, taking the wood-hauling truck along with the expectation of bringing home a feed for all their friends. Leaving the truck at the edge of the Basin, they crossed one dredger cut on the boat "Lester." Patiently waiting for the ducks to come down stream, they failed to notice that the water in the Basin was rising rapidly and when they returned to cross the old canal they were forced to strip to their waists. That was bad enough until they got near the "Lester" to return to the truck, where they found it in ten feet of water. Swimming was good and they took turns until they managed to get their clothes in the boat where they dressed in the open and subjected to the north wind tearing down along the Basin. The truck load consisted of one duck which had been killed in a day's sport.

Thomas Taylor is now making his home with his Uncle, W. B. Smith, since the death of his sister in Sacramento.

Last Tuesday morning at 3 a. m., the watchman on the Northern Electric bridge was startled by the cries of a man paddling for life in the turbulent waters of the Sacramento river. Somebody in a nearby houseboat heard the cries also and put out in a small boat to rescue the paddling individual. Resting on the railing of the bridge was the lady who was the cause of the trouble, calmly enjoying the efforts of the man to get out of the water. It seems they had trouble and he threatened to commit suicide, even going so far as to jump into the stream. The water felt too cold, when he called for help. The couple were reconciled and gave their stopping place in Sacramento as the Traveler's Hotel.

S. P. Pankost reports several tools stolen from the steamer "Scout" by some parties who were noted to be sleeping in the boat for several nights. Constable Buckingham is on the trail of the thieves and has a good description of the guilty party, because he was seen by Pankost leaving the boat with a roll of blankets.

Miss Sally Russell has returned to her employment in Sacramento after an attack of influenza which kept her at her home during the past week.

Mrs. A. L. Case is in receipt of a telegram announcing the death of her brother, R. N. Cook, in New York last Monday. The remains will be taken to Challenge, Yuba County, for burial.

Mrs. J. Schad is confined to her home in Riverbank with an attack

Mrs. C. Hart is able to be around again, after having been laid up for ten days with a severe cold.

Russell Crase spent several days of the past week with his grandmother, Mrs. Newton, on furlough from Mare Island.

"Jitney," a well known hunter of this locality, is confined in the County Hospital in Woodland suffering from a severe fall which he had last Saturday from the gangplank of his boat.

Miss Alice Harms is able to be around her home, recovering from a case of influenza.

Word has been received from Merle Richeson that he landed in New York on January 16th from France and expects to be home by February 1st with an honorable discharge.

At the Richeson home for several days of the past week, Miss Leona Richeson of Oakland has been a visitor.

Mrs. Belle Porter has returned from Oroville where she spent several days of the past week visiting friends.

Ray Russell has been at home from Mare Island on a short furlough visiting with his parents. His father, Wm. Russell, ex-Constable of Washington, has been deputized as Deputy U. S. Marshal and commissioned to go to Fort Leavenworth with the forty-six I. W. W. prisoners convicted a few days ago. While in Missouri, he will visit relatives at his old home.

FACTORY OF WESTERN BASKET AND BARREL COMPANY WILL START OPERATION MONDAY

MANY WOMEN AND GIRLS MAY OBTAIN EMPLOYMENT IN THIS NEW INDUSTRY OF YOLO COUNTY ADJACENT TO WASHINGTON

Developments of a substantial character in and around Washington during the past few months have been coming so steadfastly that it has almost been impossible to keep up with the procession.

Indeed, visitors from outside point to this section of Yolo County, and even visitors from Sacramento, just across the river, have been greatly astonished at the continuous and steadfast improvement.

From week to week this paper has endeavored to keep its readers posted on the material things happening at this side of the river but since the growth has been so phenomenal, the paper has been forced to administer the information in homepathic installments.

We have described to our readers the great plant of the Sacramento Valley Dock and Warehouse Company.

The California State Rice Milling Company's plant has been given some attention but entirely inadequate to illustrate fully the great plant where 6,000 bags of rice are handled daily.

The National Rice Mill has been the subject of illustration in The Independent and yet the surface of this great plant has only been touched by the illustrations of The Independent.

Every morning of the year, scores of men cross the bridges from Sacramento looking for work at these great plants. There is not an idle man in this section of Yolo County who is able to work and more help is in demand all the time.

The Weston Basket and Barrel Company's plant is the latest to be added to the industries at this side of the river.

Tomorrow this plant will be completed, in so far as the actually necessary buildings are required. More buildings will be added later on but for the present two large buildings are erected to accommodate a plant and an industry that is absolutely new in this locality, absolutely new in this section of the State.

The purpose of this factory is to construct boxes, barrels, drums and conveyors that may be used by the wholesale merchants in any section of the country. These conveyors are naturally to be of light material but of sufficient strength to withstand hard handling.

In the past this work has mostly been imported from the Eastern States and from the State of Washington and British Columbia.

In this new factory, a timber that formerly went to waste, except as firewood is being used—cottonwood.

Up and down the Sacramento Valley, along the streams of the Feather rivers, cottonwood grew in profusion. For no other purpose was it used than for fuel. The discovery was made that it was useful for the purpose above mentioned and hence the location of the factory in this neighborhood.

Great machinery has been installed for the conversion of the raw material into the manufactured article. A floor space of 8,960 square feet accommodates the plant and will be devoted entirely to manufacturing purposes.

The veneer machines are of great strength and are operated by electric motors of fifty horsepower. Approximately 20 people will be employed in this section of the building alone.

When this portion of the factory is in full working order, it is the intention of the corporation to construct an excelsior plant which will employ not less than fifteen more people and when this portion of the factory is in full operation, the idea of establishing a box shook section is in view.

In this latter industry it is estimated that not less than ten men will be always busy throughout the entire year.

There is a possibility when the industry proceeds to near perfection that berry basket manufacturing and similar material will be added to the plant. Should this come about, an additional twenty-five people will be added to the working force of the factory.

At this writing, the superintendent of the plant, E. R. Fletcher, intends to devote all his time to the manufacture of drums (such as coffee and banana drums), hoops, liners, staves and heads.

To secure the raw stock from the Feather and American rivers, logging crews, boats and barges will be used on an extensive scale.

A great deal of the lumber that is now about to be used has been floated down in rafts, chained together and guided by several men who travel along with the raft or which are towed by motor boats of small draft.

It is estimated by Mr. Fletcher that in a short time, not less than sixty people will be employed in the Weston Basket and Barrel Company's factory in West Sacramento.

Fronting the factory on the riverside has been built a slip. This extends from the factory door into low water mark. Up this slip are dragged the great logs that have been floated down stream. Automatically they are handled until finally they emerge at the other end of the building ready to be made and formed into the required lengths and thicknesses for the purpose desired.

A visit to the factory is invited by the Superintendent and an interesting few hours may be spent within the plant.

There are other factories at this side of the river that have not been described yet by The Independent, such as the Sorrento Canning Co., which is producing concentrated essences of fruit and vegetables put up in cans.

There is also the Horst Dehydrating plant with about thirty people but which will be in full swing with more than 100 people within the next few weeks.

California produced 800,000 gallns il and 1,000,000 gallons pickled olives in 1918.

THE GRIZZLY BOYS WILL NOT STAND FOR PROHIBITION

Last Thursday afternoon while a train was waiting in Sacramento to convey the California Grizzlies to the Presidio in San Francisco, where the company will be discharged, two of the boys wandered across the Southern Pacific bridge to view the big structure.

Picking up a paper in one of the local stores, one of them noticed the heading:

"U. S. To Be Voted Dry Today," and immediately showed his temper toward this sentiment.

To his companion he said:

"Bill, see this? See what they are trying to do to us while we were out fighting for liberty? See what they want to do to us before another million of the boys get home?

"That's the work of a sneak. They wanted to take advantage of us while we were out willing to shed our blood for our country, for liberty.

"Wait until the rest of the boys get back and these sky-pilots will go on the shelf for a while.

"What's the hurry about this Prohibition stuff anyway? Why are they rushing it before the men who are entitled to have a say in the question can get home from the battlefields of victory?

"They will not put it over if we can stop it, but at least we are going to have a little say in the matter."

DON'T LET SAN FRANCISCO STEAL THE BEAN BUSINESS

A bill has been introduced in the Legislature by Assemblyman C. W. Goetting to set aside Wharf No. 41 as a bean wharf to accommodate the beans of the Sacramento and San Joaquin Valleys.

There is a bug in this bill, which has for its purpose the stealing of the bean business from West Sacramento.

It should be watched and fought for its purpose is malignant and detrimental to this end of the State.

CATECHISM OF PROHIBITION DOCTRINE

(From the Sisson Headlight)

Who is figuring on making the laws of California this session of the Legislature? Gandier.

Who is going to execute these laws? Gandier.

Who is passing these laws? Gandier.

Who is Gandier? He is legislative, executive and judicial head of the State.

Did the people elect Gandier? NO.

Over one million gallons of whiskey will be left in United States bonded warehouses on July 1st, if estimates made now are correct.

Will it be destroyed or poured into the gutters or held for medicinal purposes.

Oh, no.

There will be lots of blind pigs that will willingly use it.

A RESPECTED LADY AND OLD RESIDENT AT REST

Last Monday Mrs. Lydia M. Atwood died at her home on Fourth street after a short illness brought about by a severe cold followed by pneumonia.

Mrs. Atwood had been a resident of Washington during the past twenty years. Fifteen years ago her husband died, leaving her with sufficient property and income to get along moderately.

Mrs. Atwood had no relatives in this section of Yolo County, all of those surviving her being residents of St. Joseph, Missouri.

A brother, George Morris, is on the way at the present time and is expected to reach Sacramento at noon Saturday or perhaps later.

The funeral will not take place until his arrival.

Mrs. Atwood was a member of the local Baptist Church, attending regularly and devoting a good deal of her time and revenue to the wants of the church.

Her funeral will take place from the Yardley Undertaking Parlors in Sacramento, interment will be in the Odd Fellows Cemetery.

The Independent is the home paper for 4,000 people.

A TRUE DUCK STORY ON A LOCAL HUNTER

Fish stories have been told that startled the population of various localities and so fishy were some of them that nobody pays much attention any more to those yarns.

But W. D. Smith, found hunting the other day and just about to return home, was met by one of the game wardens in the Yolo Basin who accosted him and demanded.

"How many ducks have you?"

"The limit."

"How many ducks did you kill yesterday?"

"The limit."

"How many ducks did you kill the day before?"

"The limit."

"Do you know who I am?"

"No, I do not, and I don't care."

"Well, I am the game warden, and you know that if you killed the limit three days running you have broken the law."

"Well, do you know who I am? I am Bill Smith and one of the darnedest liars in Yolo County."

No arrest.

CHAOS

by Brian Shuster

What started as a barnyard joke would soon lead to old Bessy on Capitol Hill.

about. I think it's that some people in Southport don't want development in Southport."

Amegin countered that his group was not "anti-development," although its individual members have varying degrees of enthusiasm about new development in Southport, West Sacramento's southern half.

"We leave it pretty much to the individuals," he said. "We are not a strong proponent of growth, but we understand it's going to come, it's needed, and we can't stop it. We're not going to stop in the way."

Both Roscoe and Amegin were asked whether it was Cheaper's image or aesthetics which were really at issue.

"We have a good image," said Roscoe, who bristles at any description of the chain's new "Super Cheaper" outlets as "convenience stores." "We have lawns and landscaping. Our new stores, particularly, are different. We carry everything a supermarket carries, except fresh meat."

Amegin also said that the store's aesthetics were not the issue. His group could accept the store's construction if and when it can be done without sacrificing local traffic safety, he stated.

"We may not do cartwheels to have them come in here, because we don't think it provides the services and needs we have," said Amegin. "But I don't think we would have any grounds to object."

Stephen Patek, the city's community development director, said the store's owners still have a couple of options.

"They can wait until development is opened to others in Southport with the opening of the (new) bridge," he commented. "Or they can attempt to convince the council to support some other conclusion."

The new bridge, planned to cross the canal near the intersection of Park and Stone boulevards, is expected to be finished late next year. The city currently has a policy of not allowing new development in Southport until the new traffic lanes are in place, unless -- as Cheaper tried to do -- developers can show that their products will not increase the congestion on the Jefferson Blvd. bridge.

Roscoe said he didn't feel that the city had any grounds to reject his company's proposal.

"I don't think they had any basis to turn us down," he commented. "I think the council was concerned with finding a legal way to turn us down, not to approve us."

Opening lead — queen of clubs.

Basically, bridge is a game of percentages. You do well if you follow the odds, and you don't if you don't!

Assume you're declarer at six spades and West leads the queen of clubs. You win with the ace and cash the K-Q of trumps, finding them divided 2-2. Now you must decide which of three lines of play to adopt.

Perhaps the simplest approach is to lead a diamond to the king and play a heart to your queen. If the finesse succeeds, you're home. If it fails, you still have a reasonable chance to recover because you can cash the ace of diamonds and ruff a diamond, making the slam if the suit is divided 3-3 (a 36-percent chance).

Alternatively, after drawing trumps, you could start by cashing the A-K of diamonds and ruffing a diamond. If the suit breaks 3-3, you make seven. If it doesn't, you can cross to dummy with a trump and try the heart finesse.

If you choose either of these lines of play, you have about a 68-percent chance of making the slam. Not bad, of course, but not as good as a third method of play. This consists of leading a low diamond from your hand at trick four and playing low from dummy!

Let's assume East wins and shifts to a low heart. You go up with the ace, cash the A-K of diamonds, discarding a heart, and ruff a diamond to establish dummy's last diamond as a trick. You then lead a trump to the ace and discard the queen of hearts on the eight of diamonds.

This line of play succeeds whenever the diamonds are divided either 3-3 or 4-2, which occurs in 84 percent of all deals. It is therefore the
